TRAGIC DEATH.

George Coulter, a Fourteen-Year-Old Boy, Hangs Himself at Mooresville With a Piece of Binder Twine

Geo. W. Coulter, Jr., the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Coulter, of Mooresville, committed suicide last Saturday, March 11, at about 11 o'clock, a. m., by hanging himself to a fence post with a piece of binder twine. The facts as given to us by County Assessor, James I. Royalty, upon whose farm the young man was living with his parents, are about as follows: Mr. Royalty says he went to the scene of the suicide in a short time after it occurred, and found that the unfortunate lad had been cut down by his brother, who found him within at least ten minutes after the rash act had been committed.

During the morning of the day of the horrible deed George and an elder brother, Will, had been hauling wood, but quit work about 9 o'clock to go to some traps which he, Will, had set. It seems that Will had gone to the traps, leaving George behind, but as soon as the young man found that Will had gone, started out to find him. It was while returning from the traps that the elder brother found young George hanging to the fence. At first he thought that the young man was playing a prank upon him, but upon an investigation he was horrified to find that his life was extinct. When found by his brother the unfortunate young man was upon his knees, facing the post. The piece of twine with which he hung himself was not more than two feet long; it was looped over the top of the post and was held in position by a splinter, then looped about his neck in a careless manner, burying itself into the flesh.

No reason can be assigned for the deed. The deceased had not been corrected by anyone at home, and that morning was in his usual good spirits. It is thought by some that he merely attempted to frighten his brother, and possibly this may be true. The idea is advanced that he may have fainted, or slipped and fell, becoming unconscious and dying in this condition. Some people are inclined to believe this, because it is a known fact that one of the things which is probably among the impossibilities is for a man to slowly torture himself to death when there are means of escape. It is said that no man can hang himself so long as his feet rest upon something or his hands or loose. Instinct, if nothing else, will cause him to free himself.

Coroner J. M. Montgomery held an inquest and the verdict rendered was that the young man had committed suicide. In view of the evidence produced this was the only logical conclusion, but, as stated above, there is a very strong probability that young Coulter met his death through an accident of some nature.

To the bereaved family Tho. Sun, together with friends, extends condolence.

Boy Stabbed

Oscar Mobley, a twelve-year-old son of William Mobley, who lives in the Fenwick neighborhood, was stabbed last Tuesday night by a thirteen-year-old boy named Baker. They were returning from a school entertainment when the trouble occurred. At first it was thought that the boy's wound was quite serious, but later developments indicate that he was not seriously hurt, and will be out in a few days. There was only one wound, that being inflicted below the shoulder blade. It was not deep enough to injure the lung, which makes the recovery of the young man certain.

Death of Sister Clotilda.

Sister Clotilda died at St. Catherine's Monday morning at 7 o'clock, after a lingering illness of consumption, and the body was interred in the cemetery at that place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. The deceased was the daughter of John Nixon, of New Orleans, and had been a member of the Dominican order for about three years and a half. She was a devout and earnest worker in the cause of the Institution, and was happiest when engaged in those duties which would promote the cause of her religion. Sister Clotilda was in her twentieth year, and, although young, she was a strength to the order and had won a warm place in the hearts of all the sisters at St. Catherine's.

Death At Simms.

On Wednesday, March 8, Mr. Richard Thomas died at the home of his son, Mr. C. W. Thomas, of Simms. He had been in feeble health for some time before his death, but had already passed his three score and ten years, having been born June 15, 1833. He was married to Miss Silva Childers, of which union seven children were born, five of whom are still living. His funeral was preached at the home of his son, by Rev. Jesse Murrel, after which his remains were carried to Lebanon and interred in Ryder's cemetery. Mr. Thomas was a member of the Baptist church and was a conscientious Christian gentleman.

The Sun's Popularity Contest Closes

Special Prizes Be Will Given to Contestants Who Are in the Lead at Noon On April 4, Announcement Next Week.

The voting contest will close on April 26 at noon. Every indication points to an exciting finish. As is nearly always the case in such contest some of the contestants become bunched, which is due largely to the fact that the friends of those who are in the lead, and the friends of those who are just a few hundred votes behind, are working, upon the one side to keep their favorites in the lead, and upon the other side to make inroads and gains for their friends over the vote of the previous week. However, it is frequently the case that those who, in the start, do not seem to be in the race, to use a political term, very often finish with a winning large vote. The Sun has been told by a number of the friends of the contestants that there is going to be some lively voting during the last two weeks of the contest. A gentleman who was in the office a few evenings ago offered to wager with us that the contest would put at least a thousand names upon our subscription list. Certainly we hope he is right about it.

YOU CAN BUY SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We have been asked if the friends of the contestants would be allowed to buy subscriptions, sending the papers to whom they pleased with the privilege of casting fifty votes with each one dollar paid. Yes, you may buy ten thousand if you want to, and in less than a weeks time we will have a fast press in Springfield to "grind 'em out."

BUYING SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Sun will sell you as many subscriptions as you want, granting you the privilege of disposing of them within one year after you have bought them, provided you SELL THEM FOR ONE DOLLAR EACH or give them away to friends. We could not afford to have the subscription of the paper cut, as this would give our trouble in the future. To give an example: Say a friend of a contestant bought one hundred dollars worth of subscriptions, this would entitle him to five thousand votes for one of the teachers, one of the young ladies and one of the farmers, and then during one year's time he could dispose of these subscriptions, sending the names of the subscribers to The Sun with a subscription certificate, which will be furnished by The Sun, and the paper will then be sent to the address for one year from the time the name is received in this office.

Death of Mrs Phillips

Mrs. Laura Phillips, widow of James G. Phillips, died at her home in Lebanon last Saturday from the infirmities of old age and is survived by three daughters and three sons—Mrs. Samuel Arritt, of Louisville; Mrs. John W. Lewis, of this place; Mrs. Julia Exall, J. C. James C. and Charles Phillips, of Lebanon. She was one of the most prominent and best-known women in this section of the State, and was born and reared in Louisville, being a first cousin of Gen. John B. Castleman and Sam Castleman and aunt of Mrs. A. C. Semple, Mrs. J. C. Dodd, Clarence Mengel and Mrs. Len Cox. The funeral was held Sunday morning.

Young Wife's Death.

(Kentucky Standard.)

Mrs. Anace Moore died last Saturday morning at her home in Bardonia as the result of childbirth. Deceased was the wife of Mr. Cornelius Moore, son of Mr. T. S. Moore, the well known distiller. She was aged about 21 years, and was formerly a Miss Patterson. She was a native of Canada, and the remains were taken for interment. She is survived by her husband and twin babies.

Grain of Corn Removed.

Little Stanley, son of Mr. Robert Thompson, had to undergo a very painful operation, by having a grain of corn removed from his nostrils. It had been there for three months, and had given the little fellow much pain.

Circuit Court

Circuit Court is still in session. Special Judge C. B. McDowell, of Danville, has gotten through with the cases in which Judge Thurman is interested and has returned to his home. The case of Barlow vs Barlow is set for trial Friday of this week, and by agreement of parties Judge John D. Carroll, of Henry county, will act as Special Judge. This is a suit in equity brought by Mrs. Nannie Barlow vs Richard Barlow for a divorce and maintenance, and for the custody of the child.

TOBACCO GROWERS

Meet in Lexington and Formulate Plans.—Big Meeting at Taylorsville.

Hon. W. C. McChord was in Lexington Monday to attend a meeting of the Burley tobacco growers. Mr. McChord informs The Sun that he never attended a more enthusiastic meeting, and that he never saw a more determined set of men than those who are endeavoring to organize the Burley Growers Company. At this meeting resolutions were passed endorsing the work done by President Hawkins and denouncing as a malicious falsehood the published statement that Mr. Hawkins had sold the Burley Growers Company out to the trust. A committee of seven on organization was appointed, and work will be begun at once.

Pleased With McChord's Speech.

The Burley tobacco growers of Spencer county held a mass meeting in Taylorsville Monday of last week. The article and resolutions of the Washington county meeting, as printed in The Sun, were read at this meeting and a resolution was passed requesting the Spencer Courier, to publish them. The Courier says:

The Burley tobacco growers held a meeting here last Monday, which was well attended. All expressed regret at the failure of the association but none of the growers are disposed to give up the fight. At Monday's meeting all the old contracts were burned.

A paper was read in which was reported an account of a big meeting of the growers held at Springfield Monday week. The Spencer county growers are heartily pleased with the speech of Hon. W. C. McChord and the resolutions adopted at the Springfield meeting, and passed a resolution requesting the Courier to publish them.

MCINTIRE.

The magic touch of spring is upon us, but we fear that the lamb's quarter of March is at the wrong end.

HAND IN HAND

Roosevelt and Bryan, Says The Republican New York Sun. Democrats and Republicans Are One—Mr. Bryan the One.

In the dust and heat of the shindies, political and economic, how can you expect to do justice to your adversaries? Almost inevitably your mental picture of them is out of the drawing. You splutter that with faults not their own. You give heroic virtues to your own side.

At last the historians come, collates the document, corrects mistakes, adds some of his own, sends out his most voluminous guess and elaborated historical fiction.

By that time everybody who took any living interest in that once popular knowledge of the actors has joined the majority, stopped voting and reading, shut up permanently. The "vindicating" man has no earthly joy of his "vindicating." The "overheated partisan" may still be overheated, he is not here to have his temperature reduced by "an impartial study of the facts."

Mr. Bryan is an exception to this rule as to many other rules. He has been "vindicating" in his prime. He has not had to wait for posterity.

In 1896 and in 1900 the American people voted Mr. Bryan down. They thought he was a dangerous, radical, a cannibal of capitalists. Then the Republicans were supposed to be conservative. In 1904 Mr. Roosevelt was made president by a marvelous majority, to which Mr. Bryan's friends contributed generously. Now Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan are hand in hand and hand in glove. Mr. Bryan and the Democratic party are helping and cheering Mr. Roosevelt. It is hard to tell whether Republican or Democratic representatives made the better "record" of speed in railroading the Townsend railroad rate bill through the house.

The gold shield and the silver shield clash no more. The bitter fight in 1896 and 1900 are as a dream of a shadow. They must have been caused by misapprehension. Democrats and Republicans are one.

Mr. Bryan is the one.—New York Sun.

Just A Bit of Human Nature.

(Atlanta Constitution.)

Did you ever have the feeling that you didn't have a friend, And your thoughts were dank and gloomy, and had a darkness trend. Did you ever feel that evil was the only thing you knew, And the more you thought about it the darker your thoughts grew?

Did you ever have the feeling that the world had gone all wrong, And the more you thought it over the thought grew yet more strong? Did you ever feel misfortune was your only friend left now, And the thought brought perspiration cold upon your aching brow?

Did you ever have a feeling that you didn't give a son, About a single thing at all you knew what you would do— You'd start right now and get blind drunk, and paint the old town red, What mattered anything to you; you'd be a long time dead?

Gilding Without Gold.

One more proof that all is not gold that glitters is found in the fact that much of the gold lettering seen on signs, and also much of the gilding of picture frames, has no gold whatever about it. Among laymen the opinion prevails that all such decoration requires the actual use of gold leaf, but the reality is different, and a substitute that defies detection has been widely used for some time. The exact effect of gold is secured by using a leaf of either silver or aluminum under red low paint. The metal backing gives the required luster, and the paint gives the required color. This method can not be used in all cases, because the paint is of peculiar quality and requires putting on with an even thickness. For this reason it is generally applicable only to flat surfaces. Parts of a gilded picture frame which are molded into waving surfaces generally require genuine gold leaf to cover them. Philadelphia Record.

UNUSUAL KILLING.

A Missouri Doctor Advises Lad, Whom He Has On a Lookout For Burglars, to Shoot the First Man Passing a Window, and the Doctor was the First.

The death of Dr. J. P. Willett from a gunshot wound inflicted by Claude Price, a sixteen-year-old boy, has caused a widespread interest, for the doctor was one of the best known physicians in this section, says a correspondent writing from Webb City, Mo.

The peculiar circumstances of his death had led many to believe that the tragedy may have been contemplated. These circumstances are that within less than five minutes after he had told the boy to watch a certain window and shoot any one appearing before it he stealthily left the house in his stocking feet and appeared in front of that particular window. Corner Eames, in conversation with Mrs. Willett and the lad who fired the shot, satisfied himself that there was no criminal intent on the part of Price. The widow said: "I am sure if my husband could speak he would hold him innocent."

It was the belief of young Price when he fired the shot that he was shooting at a burglar. He was indeed simply following the explicit command of Dr. Willett, who had told him only a short time before to shoot at the very first man he saw anywhere around the premises. When he saw one come pass a window that he had been directed to watch carefully the boy at once took aim and fired. An instant afterward he was horrified when he heard the doctor exclaim:

"My God, Claude, you have shot me!"

"Why, is that you, doc?" responded the lad.

And all that Dr. Willett could say in response was the single word, "Yes." Then, staggering from in front of the window to the porch, he fell, mortally wounded, and within twenty minutes, before any medical assistance could be procured, he was dead.

The belief is general among the doctor's most intimate acquaintances that his almost hysterical belief that burglars were haunting his house was more of hallucination than reality. He had just moved into a new house on the outskirts of the city, and young Price was hired to stay with him to work at getting things in shape around the new residence.

The doctor had for several nights insisted upon both the lad and Mrs. Willett remaining awake at all hours to assist him in watching for thieves.

He had seen midnight marauders, so he said, in the barn, all around the house and even in the basement. One night recently he told a police officer that a group of them was gathered in the basement; that he shot at them through the kitchen door and was sure he had wounded one of them.

These ravaries, for such they undoubtedly were, are believed to have been the result of the use of medicine. For years Dr. Willett, it is alleged, had used these medicines and also had drunk considerable liquor.

Domestic troubles and divorce, with complete estrangement from his children, followed. But soon after his divorce had been granted he braced up, and for the past two years he had been leading a different life. He had regained his practice, had married again and was considered as in a fair way of regaining all he had lost. This was all true until a few weeks ago, when, the police say, he suddenly began to fall back to his old habits.

A Remarkable Prayer.

The appended prayer is credited to Hon. W. E. Gladstone, of England, and is remarkable as petitioning for the dead, coming from one who was a Protestant in belief:

"Oh, God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, in Whose embrace all creatures live, in whatsoever world or condition they be, I beseech Thee for him whose name and dwelling-place and every need Thou knowest. Lord, vouchsafe him light and rest, peace and refreshment, joy and consolation, in Paradise, in the companionship of saints, in the presence of Christ, in the ample folds of Thy great love.

"Grant that his life (so troubled here) may unfold itself in Thy sight, and find a sweet employment in the spacious fields of eternity. If he hath ever been hurt or maimed by any unhappy word or deed of mine, I pray Thee of Thy great pity to heal and restore him, that he may serve Thee without hindrance.

"Tell him, O gracious Lord, if it may be, how much I love him and miss him and long to see him again; and if there be ways in which he may come, vouchsafe him to me as a guard and a guide, and grant me a sense of his nearness, in such degree as Thy laws permit.

"If in aught I can minister to his peace, be pleased of Thy love to let be; and mercifully keep me from every act which may deprive me of the sight of him as soon as our trial time is over, or mar the fullness of our joy when the end of the days hath come.

"Pardon, O gracious Lord and Father, whatsoever is amiss in this my prayer, and let Thy will be done; for my will is blind and erring, but Thine is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, through Jesus Christ, Amen."

Hung Jury.

(Elizabethtown News.)

The mock trial of W. S. Taylor at Des Moines resulted in a hung jury with a jury upon which there was only one Democrat. Taylor, from his exile in Indiana, sent a brief and extended argument in his own defense. The jury deliberated eight hours. As the jury was made up of law students, young men of more than average intelligence, the result is bound to be a disappointment to Taylor, who hoped for a verdict of acquittal. Although a mock trial, the result will make an impression throughout the country.

LARGEST FARM

Is in Iowa. By Big Purchase Millionaire Has Extended Tract Into Hawkeye State.

(Glasgow Times)

The largest farm in the world, which until recently was contained inside the State of Missouri, has been extended into Iowa. It is owned by David Rankin, and his son, W. F. Rankin, of Tarkio, Mo., says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The elder Rankin is worth over a million dollars and has made it in farming. He owns 23,500 acres in Atchison county, and, being still afflicted with the westerners' desire to "own all the land joinin'", had to reach over into Fremont county, Iowa, the other day when he gathered in 3,500 acres more. Rankin never sells. He is a cattle king, a corn king, a land king, a philanthropist and a captain of industry. He employs about 300 persons representing 1,500 population, owns his own elevators in the towns where he does business, complete sets of buildings on various sub-divisions of his own land, a trolley line of his own to take produce to the railroad, and lives in a mansion of great comfort with Electric Bitters. There is no compromise and no concession to be expected from them. They will force the old craft back to its own moorings and have faith in another safe voyage to the Presidential haven.

Are you Engaged?

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestion in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters; which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy. C. J. Haydon, druggist, sells and guarantees them, at 50c a bottle."

Mr. Roosevelt's Policies

(Atlanta News.)

Washington, March 3.—Theodore Roosevelt, by grace of God and by will of the people, the twenty-sixth President of the United States, is playing a bold part just now not only in the affairs of his country, but in shaping the future policy and destiny of the Democratic party.

The President is a natural Democrat. He says so himself—a "Benton Democrat," he calls it. How he managed to get mixed up with the Republican camp and to prosper in it is a mystery that can only be explained by environment—and luck.

The Republican leaders never liked him. They loathed his protests, his free, bold ways, and they most deliberately tried to shove him by making him Vice-President against his will at Philadelphia.

But the Providence which shapes the destinies of nations and men reserved him for service to the people and for the revivification of the great Democratic party which carries now and always the best hope of the plain people of America.

The President has climbed into the Democratic band wagon and has actually seized the reins and is doing the driving without any apology to the owners.

He is demonstrating a regard for popular rights and a fearlessness of corporate displeasure which is as wholesome as it is un-Republican and he is setting an example of courage in high places which is bracing the backbone of all parties and of all citizens in a republic that has been too much inclined to cower and tremble before the supposed omnipotence of the colossal trusts and syndicates.

I do not fear to hesitate to say this much of the Republican President, because it is true, and because I am sure that his present policies will all work out to the good and glory of the Democratic party, whose platform he is now vindicating, and the correctness and practicability of whose creeds he is advertising to the amazement of his own ranks and to the delight of ours.

Theodore Roosevelt is making a Democrat every day—making them out of men who have been Republicans, and making over those who have forgotten to be Democrats, or who have been discouraged in the hope of success.

Do not for a moment imagine that the President can ever carry his old wide-bound party of private and tariff-fed parasites along with him in this Democratic way. They are following him rather dumbly now, because they have scarcely gotten their breath in the astonishment which his boldness and his popular courage have produced. They are afraid of this young and now untrammelled political athlete, whose prowess and daring do not particularly invite difference or attack. But there is a muttering all through the ranks of the Republican party, and the murmur will deepen to a storm, in which the spoilsman's organization will go down in defeat. The profits of party are already foretelling the speedy future in which Theodore Roosevelt will stand as Grover Cleveland did—at the head of all the leaders of his political army, and as a wedge to split in twain an organization that has already performed its mission and ought to be ready to die.

Nor is the President himself to reap the fruits of a career which must be unselfish because it is without the expectation of political reward. He has definitely and distinctly put behind him the desire or expectation of another term of office. He has pledged himself to be no more a candidate for Presidential honors. He cannot in honor lead again. His party will not deserve the credit for his administration. He himself is out of the race for indorsement. By the next national campaign the Republican party will be split into fierce factions over the Rooseveltian reign.

The fact of corporate greed and privilege which furnishes the material will be implacable against a Democratic President in a Republican administration. They will stand in a phalanx for the old creeds of protection and favoritism. There is no compromise and no concession to be expected from them. They will force the old craft back to its own moorings and have faith in another safe voyage to the Presidential haven.

But there are thousands of honest Republicans who, since the war, have lost and unquestioning faith have followed the fortunes of the party of Lincoln and Grant. They have kept the faith and never broken ranks because their traditions were set. To these men Roosevelt is a revelation. He is preaching them Democracy from a Republican pulpit. He is showing them that the things which Democrats have pleaded for for forty years, and which they have been taught to believe would bring ruin to the country, are good things and righteous things and that they can be done and ought to be done.

Those men can never be Republicans after the old fashion any more. Roosevelt has opened their eyes. They see the light and love it because it is the light of popular liberty.

Now, who will these men follow? They cannot follow the spoilsman and the trust magnate. Not all the fat of syndicates can tempt them any more. They will not have Roosevelt to follow for the Reform President will not be there to lead.

What, then, but the Democratic party is left to carry the creeds and policies which these honest men have been taught by a great example to respect?

If only the Democratic party shall be true to itself and to its great traditions if only the Democratic party will rise to the level of the great opportunity which is presented to it in this tremendous movement. If only the trimmers and cowards and half-Republicans will be quiet or quit, and give a real Democracy free course to be glorified.

No half-hearted platform, no cumbersome platitudes, no straddling candidates can rally the brave, true men who have been liberated and inspired by the splendid movements of this eventful year.

The man and the platform must meet in a definite and aggressive campaign. The issues must be clear. The sentiment short. The platform must be brief enough for every American voter to poste in his hat.

First—Reform the Robber Tariff.
Second—Regulate the Criminal Trusts.

Third—Equalize taxation, if it takes an income tax to do it.

Fourth—Arbitrate the differences of capital and labor.

Fifth—Make reasonable the hours of labor.

Sixth—Put child slavery out of the factories.

Seventh—And put in stripes every man who buys or bullies an American ballot.

Go to the country in seven ringing sentences and the country will respond in a storm of ballots that will bury the Republican party.

Every convert that Roosevelt is making now to the doctrines of popular rights and liberty—and they are thousands—must pin his faith hereafter to the party from whom the President is borrowing his thunder.

There are many Democrats, it is true, whose creeds and personal interests will carry them to the ranks of the old conservative party of property and privilege.

Let them go and the sooner the better. For the great rank of the Democratic army—the plain-people of America—reinforced and recruited by the great army whom Roosevelt has liberated from Republican tradition, will make a majority mightier than Roosevelt's own.

And in that majority will be the rebuke of the selfish and greedy spoilsman, and the triumph of a great people—the greatest good of the greatest number—for whom the government was built by the fathers, and for whom it must be administered if it hopes or deserves to survive.

It shall be the purpose of this and subsequent letters to point the Democratic people to their splendid opportunity and to the way to meet it.

Things You Ought to Know.

A bit of iron can be removed from the eye with a magnet. Never rub the eye when it is affected. If the particle causing the disturbance is on the upper lid, draw out the upper lid and drag the lashes of the under lid across the inside of the upper lid. Reverse the action if the dirt is on the lower lid. A grain of flaxseed or a tiny piece of lint soaked in water will remove a speck of dirt. If tears flow, wipe the eye by wiping it gently toward, never away from, the nose. If someone else is unable to help, let him tilt the head over the point of a pencil and remove the speck on a bit of cotton wound about the point of an eyeglass stick or the blunt end of a hairpin.

If a child is injured or stunned by a fall or a blow take him at once to the open air. Lay him flat on his back, the head slightly higher than the body. Put cold water or ice about the head and prepare a hot mustard bath for the feet. If the child remains in a stupor it may be necessary to apply warm water to the body. The same treatment should be given to an adult, though the treatment can be more helpful.

If a child chokes, turn him quickly and not too gently upside down, patting him sharply, but not hard, upon the back. In case of an adult bend the body forward, face downward, and slap smartly upon the back. If the obstacle will not come up, jerk the throat over the head and force patient to hang by his weight by his hands. This treatment may start the obstacle downward.

To stop the nose when cotton soaked with lemon juice will relieve nose bleeding. If the bleeding is not too severe a wash of lemon juice will prevent the nose from bleeding. A small syringe can be used to force the lemon juice into the nose.

One of the quickest remedies is mustard. Rub a little of it on the nostrils. The patient should be made to drink up after cup of warm water until the mustard has produced action.

To relieve a fit of fainting lay the patient flat on his back, loosen the clothing, admit plenty of air, use a fan if convenient, and sprinkle the face with cold water.

The Spade of Modern Warfare.

The deadlock of the contending armies in Manchuria immediately after the battle of Shih River recalls the campaigns of the civil war. Kuropatkin fortified in the tracks where the battle left him, and so did his enemy. The Russian fortifications are known to be formidable, and doubtless those constructed by the Japanese are equally strong. Early in the civil war the spade was at a discount, but in 1904 both the northern and the southern armies fell to making rifle pits and breastworks as soon as a deadlock occurred in the fighting.

The Confederate General Lee, in his retrograde movement from the Wilderness battlefield to James river, fortified the lines taken up successfully at Spottsylvania, North Anna river and Cold Harbor. Grant forced his way up to the Confederate outposts and also fortified his lines. In the end he gave up trying to burst through the enemy's strong barriers and moved forward by the flank. The same method characterized the Confederate retrograde movement from Dalton to Atlanta, Ga., led by General Johnston. Johnston met every advance of his opponent, Sherman, with strong fortifications. Sherman fortified the ground taken as he pushed his army step by step against the enemy's reserve lines. Prolonged contests always end in a brute struggle for the mastery, and finally the rifle pit, the breastwork, the parapet, must take the place of human bodies to stop the bullets and shells. In this respect modern warfare has but the same old answer to the old problem—the spade, the spade.

Federation in Central America.

Some of the politicians and party leaders of Central America are reported to be making determined efforts to secure a union of the five republics of that region in an offensive and defensive alliance against the whole world, with the particular purpose of resisting imagined encroachments upon their rights and territory by the United States. Aggression by this country is not at the present time so threatening as to demand the formation of such an alliance, but a union of the states between Mexico and the isthmus would undoubtedly insure to the benefit both of those states themselves and of their larger neighbors. It would give a much greater assurance of permanent peace among them than now exists.

The federation movement received a considerable impetus from the recent convention at Port Corinto, at which Guatemala, Nicaragua, Salvador and Honduras were represented. Costa Rica sent no delegates to this meeting, but her eminent men express themselves as in hearty sympathy with the federationists.

This country is not alone in having a severe immigration problem, which to contend, England has discovered that within a comparatively short time she has convicted over 13,000 aliens of crimes at a cost to her taxpayers of over $600,000. Furthermore, the influx of aliens is raising the rents to a figure which is beyond the resources of her own poor toilers. Many of the aliens are paupers and become a burden upon the communities where they settle.

Brigadier General Story, chief of artillery of the United States army, makes the encouraging announcement that our new coast defenses render our main cities as nearly impregnable as Port Arthur. He insists, however, that more-artillerymen are needed to keep the forts and their guns in their present state of efficiency.

Dr. E. W. Hall, St. Louis, Mo.—Dear Sir: I am 68 years of age, and have suffered 25 years from kidney and bladder trouble, and since using less than one bottle of your Texas Wonder, Hall's Discovery, I have passed twenty-five gravel. I feel that I am almost cured, and heartily recommend you to the public.

Yours very truly,
H. C. THOMAS, 529 Third ave.

A Texas Wonder.

One small bottle of the Texas Wonder, Hall's Great Discovery, cures all kidney and bladder trouble, removes gravel, cures lame backs, rheumatism and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder. It cures the most severe cases of bladder trouble in children. If not sold by your druggist, it will be sent by mail on receipt of $1. One shoe lasts for two months' treatment and seldom fails to perfect a cure. Dr. E. W. Hall, St. Louis, Mo. Send for testimonial. Sold by all druggists.

AMAZING WEALTH

Of Farms.—Their Product For 1904 in the United States Worth $4,000,000,000.

Astonishing figures are given by P. F. Hennigan, chairman of the transportation committee of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, in a report on the wealth of the farms of the country, says a Boston telegram to the New York Press. In reviewing the increase in farm capital he asserts a conservative estimate would place the amount at $2,000,000,000, and this apart from the changed land values in the last two years.

Mr. Hennigan, who is one of the most prominent business men of the city, says that the wealth of the farmers reduced to figures is nothing short of startling. His report has the indorsement of all the members of the committee, who unite in praising it as a conservative document.

"After a careful estimate of the value of the farm products for 1904," says the report, "made within the census scope, it is safe to say it will amount to $4,000,000,000, after excluding the value of the farm crops fed to livestock, in order to avoid duplication of value. This is 3.65 per cent. above the value of 1903, and 31.23 per cent. above that of 1899.

"This unthinkable value, aggregating $2,000,000,000, shows that farms have produced in two years wealth exceeding the output of all the gold mines in the world since Columbus discovered America. This year's product is more than six times the amount of the capital stock of all the national banks; it lacks only three-quarters of a billion of dollars of the value of the manufactures of 1900, less the cost of materials used; it is three times the gross earnings from the operations of the railroads, and it is four times the value of all the mineral products of the country."

The year 1904, the report states kept well up the average of exports of farm products during the time between 1899 and 1903, and amounted to $859,000,000, while the average for five years was nearly $865,000,000.

Loving Woman.

(Anderson News.)

After a separation of fourteen years, during which time the wife had never seen her husband, learning of his death a Connecticut woman traveled all the way from her home in Hartford to Lexington, Ky., to claim the body of the erring spouse, and convey it to his former home for a decent burial. Surely the love of a true woman for a wayward husband passeth all understanding. The average man after the desertion of his wife, and an absence of so long a time, would have allowed the body of the erring spouse to rot in the potter's field, with scarcely a thought. But woman, always loving, always forgetting wrongs done her, sacrifices time, labor and expense, with the annoyance of travel for long distances in order that he, whom she promised to love and honor, might be laid among strangers. The English language is too poor to pay adequate tribute to the faithfulness of this New England wife.

A Chicago Alderman Owes His Election to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs," says Hon. John Shenick, 22nd ass. Peoria St., Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaign, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. In my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several more doses that day kept right on talking through the campaign, and I thank this medicine that I won my seat. I heartily recommend this remedy is for sale by C. J. Haydon."

COMMISSIONER'S SALES!

SATURDAY, APRIL 1, 1905.

Hartwell Etherington, Etc., Plaintiff.

vs. Equity. Parlee Sway and Others, Defendants.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Washington Circuit Court, rendered at the February term, 1905, in the above styled cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale, on the premises, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, upon a credit of six and twelve months the following described property, to-wit: Two certain tracts of land situated in Washington County, Ky.

TRACT NO. 1, bounded as follows: Beginning at or near a Beech Tree corner to Erasmus Hendrick and Job Dunn, thence N. 66° W. 56 poles and 7 links to a Beech and Dogwood, corner to Royalty; thence down a branch of the highway to the corner of the 22 E. 20 poles and 13 links; thence N. 91° W. 22 poles and 9 links; thence 21.1 W. 17 poles and 10 links to James A. Sway's land; thence N. 24 E. 17 poles and 8 links; thence S. 67 E. 34 poles; thence S. 23 W. 109 poles to the beginning, containing 44 acres.

TRACT NO. 2, bounded as follows: On the N. by the Louisville, Williamsburg and Chaplinton turnpike; on the West by the lands of Henry Serrage; on the South and East by the land of John Cheatham, containing 59 1/2 acres, and also a small tract containing about 5-16 of an acre lying across the line from the said 59 1/2 acres and bounded on the South of said turnpike, on the other sides by the lands of A. L. Hupp, and Richard Breckinridge.

TERMS.--For the purchase price the purchaser or purchasers, with approved security, must execute bonds bearing legal interest from date of sale until paid, and to have the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained on the land. Bidders must be prepared to comply promptly with these rules.

Tract No. 1 will be sold on the premises, near Pulliam, at the residence of Mark Shewmaker, at 10 o'clock, a. m., Saturday, April 1, 1905.

Tract No. 2 will be sold on the premises, about one and half miles from Williamsburg at the residence of Hartwell Etherington, Jr., at 1:30 o'clock, p. m., on Saturday, April 1, 1905.

Valuable Asset

The Halo Created by Newspaper Advertisers

One of the most popular and sought-after members of the Citizens' Industrial association was C. W. Post of Battle Creek, the manufacturer of several well known breakfast and predigested foods. He is a firm believer in the necessity of newspaper advertising and declares that last year he spent over $2,000,000 in this way.

To a number of friends at the Claypool hotel he said that to sell any article a "halo" must be constructed about it with the help of the newspapers.

"A halo is a manufactured article largely produced by newspapers. It is worn by men and women and is used also to decorate some articles of commerce. It is constructed of an intangible sort of substance, and its lines are not always clearly defined.

"The art of making halos is not always clearly understood by merchants. Suppose a merchant has a large stock of cloaks. If he is an expert in the manufacturing of halos to decorate these cloaks he is very sure to create a demand and make money by doing so. "It is distinctly the business of the newspaper to make halos," Mr. Post declared. "Seldom, if ever, does a good advertiser fail. Good advertising is nothing more or less than the talk of a first class salesman, not to one individual, but to each individual of a mass.

"One kind of salesman takes his time to carefully detail the merits of the goods he has to sell and makes his talk verbally to one customer, while the same amount of energy, thought, salesman ability and convincing argument would win perhaps 1,000 people if told through the columns of a newspaper, and in the telling one begins the construction of a halo, which will in time be completed if the work is continued day by day with undaunted interest.

"Newspapers can build a halo for any reputable or worthy merchant, and when finally built and placed in position the merchant will find it the most valuable asset he has."--Indianapolis Star.

We are having some very pretty weather now. Most all the people have sowed their beds for tobacco.

Eggs are fifteen cents per dozen now, but they will be less by Easter.

Would you inform me who is the richest man in the world? Is it John D. Rockefeller?

It is very probable that Rockefeller is the richest man in the world. He himself does not know what he is worth. About ten years ago he testified in court that he could not come within $10,000,000 of his wealth, and to-day he is a much richer man than he was at that time. Senator Clark, the Montana gold king, is said by some to be the world's richest man. His gold mines are almost "inexhaustible." And others who assert that Andrew Carnegie is the wealthiest man in the world. But just at this time it seems that

Mrs. Ella Taylor was in Springfield Saturday on business.

Joe Hays sold his tobacco at 6c cents to Jim Moore. H. B. Bonta sold his tobacco at the same price to B. D. Lake.

We are glad to report little Vesta Lee Hays about well, after a brief illness.

Spencer county, attended church here Sunday and visited their sister, Mrs. Lem Cheser, at Polin.

Miss Ollie Gray, of Hardesty, has been visiting at the home of her uncle, D. B. Sutherland.

Miss Carrie Neale, of Chaplin, is spending the week with Miss Carrie Russell.

Rev. Maxwell filled his regular appointment here Sunday, and delivered an interesting sermon. He also announced that Dr. Jacob Ditzler, a noted divine, will deliver a series of lectures at Chaplin Saturday evening, Sunday and Sunday evening. His subject for Saturday, "Methodism, and its Mission to the World."

Ed King and Miss Ruby Tyler, of Smithville, spent Saturday and Sunday with the latter's aunt, Mrs. Emma Neale.

Mrs. Kate Williams was in Springfield one day last week.

Miss Fee Cokendolpher, of Bloomfield, is teaching a class in music in our community. She will meet her class at the home of Mrs. Emma Neale.

SEAVILLE.

Mrs. Leanne Sea visited her father, J. L. Jenkins, last week.

J. L. Spingate sold some oats to Ben Sanders and Charles Spingate.

Mr. Sol Satterly says he is now thirty-five-years-old and has never before seen a paper to equal The Sun. It shines brighter each week.

We are having some very pretty weather now. Most all the people have sowed their beds for tobacco.

Eggs are fifteen cents per dozen now, but they will be less by Easter.

Would you inform me who is the richest man in the world? Is it John D. Rockefeller?

It is very probable that Rockefeller is the richest man in the world. He himself does not know what he is worth. About ten years ago he testified in court that he could not come within $10,000,000 of his wealth, and to-day he is a much richer man than he was at that time. Senator Clark, the Montana gold king, is said by some to be the world's richest man. His gold mines are almost "inexhaustible." And others who assert that Andrew Carnegie is the wealthiest man in the world. But just at this time it seems that Rockefeller is the accepted "leader," and you may let it go at that and be satisfied that you are pretty near right about it. --Editor J.

Sea, Sanders & Co., are still buying tobacco.

Mr. Sanders is going to put out about fifteen acres of tobacco this season.

We are glad that Mackville has bright prospects of having a railway from Springfield to Danville, and hope that Perryville can get closer to the railway.

Wm. Sanders sold his farm to Fry Lake for $2,000. Mr. Lake will take possession at once. Mr. Sanders and family have moved in a part of the house, occupied by L. H. Sea.

Mrs. Leahy Godlett is sick at this writing.

Jimie, the two-year-old son of L. M. Darnell, is on the sick list.

We regret to say that Mr. George Royalty, who has been confined to his bed for two months with brights disease is no better, and there is little hope of his recovery.

CARDWELL.

Henry Moore and wife spent Saturday night with Lud Jenkins and wife. Will Littler, who has been very sick, is much better.

T. H. Royalty will leave soon for Oklahoma to make his home.

The high water did a great deal of damage to land in this section.

Miss Lettie Jenkins visited the family of Lud Jenkins Sunday.

We are sorry to say that Miss Sallie Poston is quite sick and her recovery is doubtful.

W. L. Moore bought a load of corn from Jas. Mack at $2.50 a barrel.

Erasmus Young and wife spent Saturday night with Mrs. Maria Lay.

Eskil Graham and wife and Floris Lay and wife visited the family of Lonnie Turner at Mackville Saturday.

Willie Moore and T. H. Pinkston were the guests of Sid Kays at Salvia Saturday.

Lea Sanders and Miss Addie Christie were the guests of Miss Nannie Royalty Saturday.

Charley Royalty and sister entertained a number of friends Saturday night. All report a pleasant time.

Floris Lay and wife were in Harrodsburg one day last week.

Henry Moore and wife visited the family of E. J. Holiday last week.

For the sick use Postum Cereal and Grape Nuts, for sale by Joseph A. Shader.

The Ice Prisoners

[Copyright, 1906, by T. C. McClure.]

One day, when 480 miles to the south of Cape Horn in the American brig Wanderer, we sighted a derelict and lowered a boat to give her an overhauling. In making our way back we were caught in a squall and carried out of sight to leeward in ten minutes. There wasn't over an hour of daylight left us when the squall came down, and when night fell the guests had settled down into a steady gale.

At about 6 o'clock each man snuggled down to make himself as comfortable as possible, and it was an hour later when the roar of breakers came to our ears. Every one instantly divined that we were drifting down upon an iceberg and that we were also perfectly helpless in the matter. We had lashed the oars together and flung them overboard for a drag to keep the boat's head to the sea. To have pulled in the drag would have been fatal. Before the oars could have been detached we should have been in the trough of the sea. Presently we drew nearer and could see the ghastly glare of the berg through the darkness. We missed the northwest corner of it by not more than a hundred feet, and the spray of a receding wave half filled our craft.

We drifted along the great island of ice for twenty minutes before reaching its southern face, and then a current drew us into the lee of it, and we knew that we were temporarily saved. We got in our drag and put out the oars, and after rowing nearly half a mile we found an inlet or bay making into the berg and ran into it. This bay extended back into the berg a quarter of a mile and was about a hundred feet in width. It was like a great river flowing down to the sea between high cliffs. We were perfectly sheltered here, and by the light of the berg's lantern we made a hearty meal of our provisions, and all turned in for a sleep.

The weather was freezing cold, but all were comfortably clad, and we had the sail of the boat to cover us in. We could hear the wind howling above us and feel the berg tremble as the great waves flung themselves against the face, but every man had a good sleep and woke up stout-hearted in the morning. I have called the mass of ice an iceberg. Perhaps ice island would be a better term for it, as when we came to inspect it by daylight we found it to be about two miles long, on each face.

The gale was still blowing away and a tremendous sea running when we awoke, and of course we had no thought of leaving the shelter we had. The first move was to get to the top of the berg and have a look for the ship. Mr. Davis, the mate, took this upon himself, but he made no discovery to reward his efforts. He, however, got a good idea of the lay of things and selected a place for landing. When he returned we left the bay and pulled to the east and landed upon a sort of shelf. We had loads of ice at hand to build a hut, and before noon we had a cabin big enough to comfortably hold five of us and the stores from the boat. In the afternoon in searching about we found three or four dwarf pines, planks from a ship's bottom, a cook's galley and chairs and a table, all but the pines from the wreck of some merchant ship. So intense was the cold that night that no man could have lived for five minutes outdoors. At midnight a gale came on.

The gale was the tail end of winter. On the fourth day the weather became so mild that the ice began to melt, and the mate told us that our island was in a current and was being carried south at the rate of two miles an hour. We were in peril now from the breaking up of the mass. On the fifth day it turned completely around, and a great rift appeared right through the center. We watched it for a day, and, seeing it widen, we took up our quarters in what we thought a safer position. We were not an hour too soon. The rift through the center continued to widen and deepen, and by and by there was a great crash, and the berg separated in halves, leaving us upon the larger one. Before night the waves had trimmed the base of our berg of all incumbrances, and we went drifting along so steadily and majestically that we almost forgot our peril.

For three days and nights nothing happened worth relating except that we discovered and managed to kill two seals which crawled upon the berg from the water to sun themselves. As the winds were light, our berg had no motion except from the current. On the morning of the tenth day before daylight had yet come we crashed into another berg which had probably grounded, and our escape from instant destruction was truly marvelous. The south side of our berg was split off by the impact, leaving our hut standing on the very edge of it. We soon had another hut up, and next day, the berg being quite still again, we made another find.

For the next eight days we moved steadily southward with the current, our food being gone and each man living on the leather of his belt or shoes. On the morning of the nineteenth day we sighted a sail and raised a smoke and two hours later were safe aboard of the Frost King of St. John. We had had a rough and perilous time of it, and had it been midwinter all would have frozen to death, but as it was all came out in good health and without the slightest bodily injury.

AN AUTOMOBILE SLEIGH.

One of the latest novelties is a motor sleigh invented by a Boston lawyer. The propelling motion is a series of cams which gives to the runners a motion similar to that of the hind feet of a horse when walking. Several successful tests were made of the novel vehicle before it was placed on exhibition at the New York automobile show.

How to Cure Bacon.

Curled bacon makes a more attractive breakfast dish than the plain fried or broiled bacon. Cut the slices very thin and press them with a broad-bladed knife to make them thinner. Put in a hot skillet, one or two slices at a time, and cook until brown. They will curl nicely when this method is followed.

How to Revive a Derby.

If one has crumpled a new derby hat so that it cracks and in spite of vigorous rubbing and brushing refuses to resume its pristine smoothness of surface, try the simple expedient of holding a lighted match inside the hat close to its broken spot. By the time the match has half burned out you will find that the hat has become soft. If you will then brush it vigorously with a stiff brush for a moment it will regain its former smoothness and look as good as new. Add five to six drops of carbolic acid.

How to Make a Good Paste.

To make a good paste for labels mix together with cold water until they form a smooth cream four ounces of flour and an ounce and a half of brown sugar. Then pour in boiling water, stirring all the time till the right consistency is obtained. Add five to six drops of carbolic acid.

Boil six lemons until tender enough to pierce with a straw. Drain and weigh them; take an equal weight each of pared and cored apples, seeded and chopped raisins, cleaned currants and finely shredded beef suet; one-half their weight each in candied orange peel and citron, and one-quarter their weight in sugar. Cut open the lemons and remove the seeds, then chop all together as fine as possible; add to this one small nutmeg, grated, one teaspoonful salt, one scant teaspoonful each of mace and ginger, one-quarter teaspoonful cloves and three ounces crumbled stale macarons. Add sufficient cider to moisten and pack away in glass jars.

The National Congress of Mothers convened in Washington last week.

In Defense of Hawkins.

Glave Goddard in a letter to the Harrodsburg Herald says:

It seems the tobacco trust is not satisfied with having crushed the Burley Tobacco Growers' Company, but intends to annihilate every man connected with it. W. B. Hawkins and his "gang," by their untiring energy and tenacity regardless of the fact of having made many serious mistakes, came so near accomplishing their purpose that up to about February 10 the trust had only purchased about twenty million pounds of tobacco, about one-sixth of the amount of their necessary supply, and because of the existence of this incomplete Tobacco Growers' Company, the trust had been forced to pay about one million dollars premium, or fifty per cent. advance for it. Hawkins and his board of directors could not be bought, could not be starved or choked off, so some more subtle scheme must be worked. If gold could not buy Hawkins and his gang it might be used to better effect with cheaper newspapers. Why pay the farmers an extra five or six millions when one or two might be secured for from $100 to $1000. Some newspapers are for sale cheaper than high-toned gentlemen. Papers of this class for a few hundred dollars could be hired to slander Christ. I attended nearly every meeting of the Growers' Company, both at Lexington and Cincinnati, any man or newspaper representative known to be interested in the move was at all times perfectly welcome and at liberty to take part, in all transpiring. An effort was made to keep trust spies out, but was not successful. The Tobacco Growers' should distinctly understand that no newspaper that ever did anything to help the association has been able to slander Pres. W. B. Hawkins. Had others been half as willing to fight the trust as to publish malicious lies about Hawkins, they might have been more successful. The statement published in the Cincinnati Post and copied in other two-penny scavenger sheets that Mr. Stewart charged Mr. Hawkins with selling out, making any dishonorable deal, falling on his knees and begging Huffer for a release, are lies out of whole cloth.

Any grower desiring any information as to the truth or falsity of my assertions as to Mr. Stewart and Mr. Hawkins can get it over either of their magazines by writing to the Lexington Observer, of March 4, 1905, or to Mr. Archibald Stewart, 211 West Pearl street, Cincinnati, O.

GLAVE GODDARD.

Land Sold.
 (Marion Falcon.)
 Master Commissioner Sam T. Spalding sold four tracts of land, as had been advertised, at the court house door Monday. One hundred and twenty-one acres sold to Mark Thomas for $1,409.11; the Happy Clark farm of 98 acres sold to Redford Smith for $2,460; The Buckner farm of 28 1/2 acres went to Ed Buckner for $5,789; 185 acres on Cloyd's creek went for $220.38, the amount of the judgement and cost. H. M. Brussell was auctioneer.

Cuban Tobacco.
 Julius G. Lay, consul general of the United States at Barcelona, reports to the state department, as having a bearing upon our trade relations with Cuba, the presentation to the Spanish government by Cuban planters and manufacturers of a petition urging the necessity of tariff concessions in favor of Cuban tobacco. The petitioner, Mr. Lay says, explains that no other product can better be sold in Spain in exchange for her oils, wines, cotton textiles, shoes and many other goods imported annually into Cuba, which during the last fiscal year aggregated a value of $10,023,512, or 18 per cent of the imports from all countries. During the twelve months ended June 30, 1903, Spain imported $1,681,624 worth of Cuban produce, or 2 per cent of the total exports from Cuba, of which amount no less than $982,243 is credited to tobacco.

Attacked By a Mob
 and beaten, in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and in my sound and well. "I use it in my family," writes C. J. Welch, of Tekonsha, Mich., "and find it perfect." Simply great for cuts and burns. Only 25c at C. J. Haydon's drug store.

An Advertising Thought.
 (Elizabethtown News.)
 John Wamamaker, the successful merchant, says: "There is only one way to advertise and that is to hammer your name, your location and your business so thoroughly into the people's heads that if they walked in their sleep they would continually turn their heads to your store. The newspaper is your best friend. It helps to build up the country which supports you. When the day comes that the newspapers are dead the people are near the edge of their grave, with no one to write their epitaph."

Against the Hargis.
 Frankfort, Ky., March 10.--The Court of Appeals today refused the writ of prohibition asked by counsel for the Hargis brothers and others against Judge Watts Parker, of the Fayette Circuit Court, to restrain him from assuming jurisdiction of them for the purpose of putting them on trial for complicity in the assassination of Town Marshal James Cockrell, of Jackson, and discharged the temporary writ issued several weeks since, under which officials of Fayette county have been restrained from arresting the plaintiffs.

The opinion of the court was delivered by Judge O'Rear, Justice Hobson, Barker and Settle concurring.

Got Off Cheap.

If it is a bilious attack take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and a quick cure is certain. For sale by C. J. Haydon.

Russia's Progress Jeopardized.

Whatever may be the fate of the particular liberal movement in Russia which led to the meeting of the zemstvo presidents at St. Petersburg, it is plain that its scope and character it is a repetition of the French awakening of 1789. Russia's progress toward human liberty has undoubtedly been jeopardized in recent years by over-zealous agitators. Nihilists stabbed itself to death. The men in the zemstvo movement are not rebels, but liberators, not mischief making malcontents, but level headed reformers.

The Russian zemstvos are elective bodies, having local powers in legislative and administrative affairs, the members being chosen for three years by three classes of voters, and the abolition of class distinction so as to virtually enfranchise the mass of peasantry is the main object of the present liberal movement. The voting class now includes landed proprietors, burghers and mechanics and peasants over twenty-five years of age who possess a certain amount of property or who are engaged in a business of certain importance.

The duties of the zemstvos are the construction of public works, regulation of public health, education, roads and the like. They have little independent authority, especially since the reactionary period began in 1900. Each district in Russia has a zemstvo, and there is one for each province, making several hundred in all. The nobility class possesses about one-third of the votes. The institution was founded forty years ago by Alexander II, as a step toward the liberalization of Russia and is really an evolution from the primitive commune and municipal corporation.

Naturally the zemstvos came into close contact with the people, and at various times, notably in 1902, the government has circumscribed the functions of the zemstvos, with the result of impairing their influence. For instance, in 1902 Russian agriculture was made the subject of inquiry by a government commission, but the zemstvos were excluded from the inquiry and the commission made up solely of landed gentry.

Effect the zemstvos are the friends of the peasantry, not as demagogues but as patriotic citizens seeking the greatest good of the greatest number and the strengthening of Russian nationality. In a practical way they are the saviors of the peasantry, who are not just emerging from serfdom. In 1890 the zemstvos asked the government to give the peasantry equality before the law, to teach them agriculture, lighten their tax burdens and increase their allotments of land. The pleas were rejected.

In the years of repression following 1900 the members of the zemstvos have been patiently working at the problems before them and now declare, in the face of the throne, their needs and their grievances. They ask, substantially, a closer union between the people and the crown, the right of initiative to rest with the people, conjointly with the crown, the abolition of the bureaucracy, which, as in the days of Louis XVI, stands between the czar and his people; to grant the peasantry full political and civil rights, and that increased powers be given to the zemstvos, making them absolutely independent political units.

The programme of the zemstvo presidents is a most radical one to be pressed in the present national crisis. But Russia has already been confronted with the evils due to her neglect of the warnings of the zemstvos in the past. The peasantry have not now, nor have they ever had, a vital interest in the national life. They object to fighting for a government which represents, if it does not oppress them, therefore the liberal manifesto is well timed. The lands of the government may be forced without resorting to violent measures. At least the movement will enlighten the whole people, and some will be taken for that inevitable conflict which cannot be long delayed.

Death of John Divine.

(Harrodsburg Herald.)
 Mr. John Divine, one of the best known and most highly esteemed men in the community, died at his home on the Bellow's Mill road Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock, after a week's illness with pneumonia.

Great Heads, Little Wit.

Great men are usually said to have great memories, but it does not follow that all who have great memories are great men. I remember an idiot in Ohio who was a great curiosity many years ago. He knew the whole Bible by heart from beginning to end, and if any verse was read or requested to him he could tell exactly in what book and chapter it was to be found and its verse number in the chapter. He was considered a great marvel in this particular, but in every other he was a mental imbecile and could not be trusted even to feed himself--St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Court Adjourned.

(Kentucky Standard.)
 The February term of Circuit Court adjourned at Bardonia last Friday. Judge Samuel E. Jones returned to his home at Glasgow, where he is holding court this week.

Mrs. Nancy Kelly, the oldest white woman in Maryland, is dead at the age of 107 years.

A Cautious Tongue.

Years ago a prominent citizen of Chicago, who at that time was president of one of its leading clubs, in introducing another prominent citizen as a speaker at a club banquet dwelt in highly complimentary terms on the latter's efforts to bring about political "reforms." "Gentlemen," said, "in this city exists a more powerful influence for good than does Mr. Blank when he is sober." Then in great confusion and amid the loudest applause, he hastened to explain that Mr. Blank, chastened, as he had intended to say, a powerful influence when he was in court.

At the banquet given in the opening of the present Board of Trade building the elder Carter Harrison made a famous speech congratulating himself on having been born in the same year that the steam locomotive was invented. He was followed by the late Emory Stors, who said that no man appropriately, Carter Harrison and the locomotive were born in the same year since both of them had been blowing off steam ever since.

It was Emory Stors who said that a fellow traveler reminded him of a beautiful house with massive portals and impressive corridors, which, when you opened the front door, landed you immediately in the back yard.

Death of John Divine.

(Kentucky Standard.)
 Mr. W. C. Price, of near town, has in his possession a unique relic of the long ago. It is the Masonic apron of his father, Mr. Joseph Price, who died over a half century ago. The latter was a member of the first Masonic Lodge ever organized in Bardonia and consequently the apron is necessarily bound to be nearly a hundred years old. The apron is satin with linen back. It contains some of the symbols of the third degree of Masonry, which are elaborately hand-painted and present a very striking appearance. The apron is quilted all around the edges with blue ribbon and the whole is in a splendid state of preservation. Mr. Price was a prominent pioneer business man of Bardonia and was the grandfather of the editor of The Standard.

Champion Liniment for Rheumatism.

Chas. Drake, a mail carrier at Chapinville, Conn., says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the champion of all liniments. The past year I was troubled a great deal with rheumatism in my shoulder. After trying several cures the storekeeper here recommended this remedy and it has completely cured me." There is no use of anyone suffering from that painful ailment when this liniment can be obtained for a small sum. One application gives prompt relief and its continued use for a short time will produce a permanent cure. For sale by C. J. Haydon.
